Welcome to Our Table!

Carbondale's history has long been rooted in the production of quality, local food. Beginning with the Ute Indians who hunted the fertile lands, later in the 1880s, settlers began to harvest the land, supplying regional mining communities with beef, potatoes and grains. At that time, the Roaring Fork Valley-from Aspen to Glenwood Springs-produced more potatoes than the entire state of Idaho. We are also proud to call the dandelion our town's official flower and recognize its vital role in our ecosystem, as well as its gourmet and medicinal benefits.

Today, Carbondale's unique ranching and farming legacy lives on. This "gastro-renaissance" is driven by young farmers and ranchers who are carving out boutique and micro-farming projects, while developing relationships with custom-grow chefs, brewers and distillers and minimizing the distance food travels from farm to fork.

This map provides you with the opportunity to connect with our heritage through flavors on your plate and in your glass. Learn our story through garden experiences across town; visit local farms and ranches where you can take a workshop or class, or simply savor the experience at one of our food and beverage establishments whose craftspeople take pride in the revered ingredients produced in our inspired mountain town.

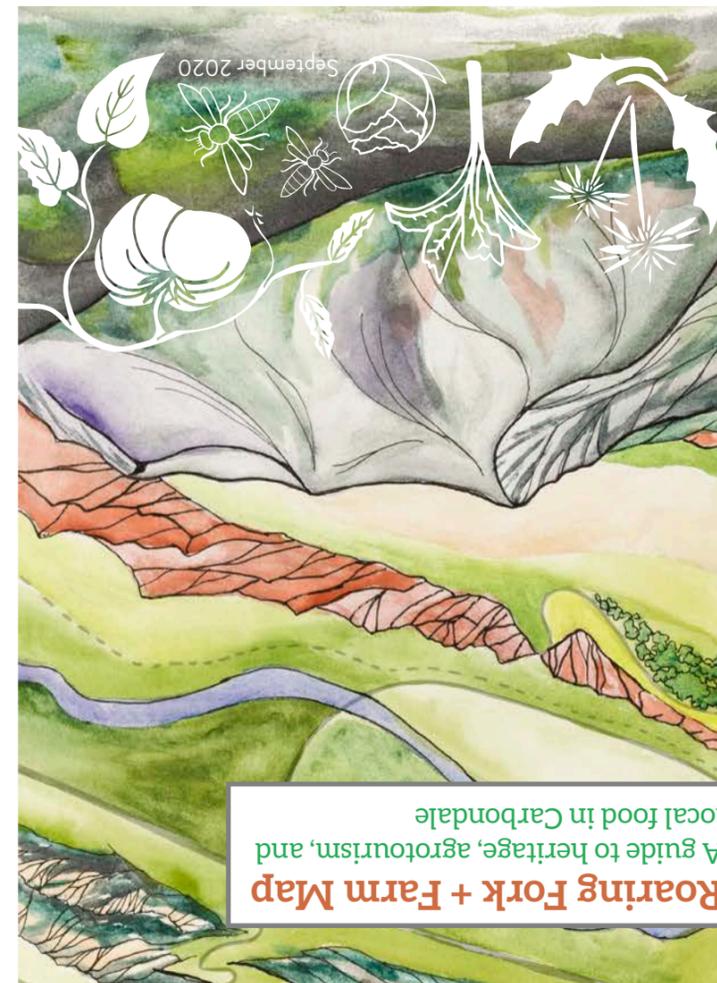

We are happy to have you. Now pull up a chair!

Sincerely,

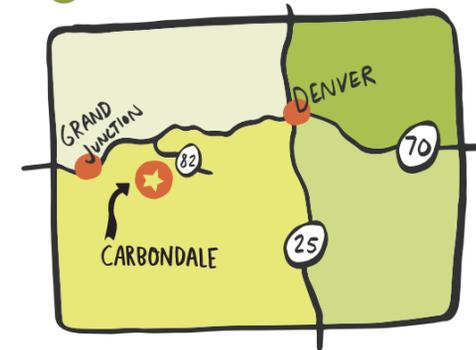

The Community of Carbondale
