ANNE GRICE INTERIORS

Interior designer Anne Grice has a consistent style in terms of warmth and the way materials are integrated and details come together. “The design has to remain cohesive and sophisticated in scale, proportion and finish,” she says. Her work demonstrates a transitional style with a timeless feel. Throughout the past 20 years, Aspen-based Anne Grice Interiors has evolved from a local residential design firm into an award-winning, national firm offering complete interior architectural services for residential, commercial and hospitality properties. Currently, her highly qualified team is remodeling a 5,500-square-foot home in Snowmass Village; a 4,000-square-foot residence and several smaller condominiums in downtown Aspen; a new workout facility at the Aspen Recreation Center; a large kitchen expansion in Baltimore; and a kitchen/living room remodel in Philadelphia. “We seek to really listen and help our clients understand why they respond to certain images or looks. This technique helps us to create a space that feels luxurious to each client,” Grice says. “We strive to make the process easy and seamless while bringing your vision to life.”

01. White Calacatta Borghini marble flows under a custom tub in this master bath. The same marble forms a shower bench that continues along the window, creating space for toiletries on top and towel storage underneath. 02. This kitchen features sandstone countertops, a custom-finished steel hood and a herringbone marble backsplash. Modern pendants light the space. 03. Walnut flooring and gray fabrics warm the palette of this townhome, while clean-lined furniture keeps it sleek. A cut-stone fireplace surround adds texture. 04. Custom designs in this guest bedroom include a leather-paneled headboard, a hair-on-hide area rug from Kyle Bunting and side tables framing the bed.
